RF Microneedling Has Many Names

There are a number of different RF microneedling devices out there, and the differences between them are in part just differences in their marketing budgets and ad campaigns.

Vivace and Vivace Ultra

Vivace and Vivace Ultra received US Food and Drug Administration (FDA) clearance in October 2022. Its red LED light has anti-inflammatory properties and plumping and smoothing effects, while its blue LED light targets acne.

Dr. Paul Jarrod Frank, MD, a board-certified dermatologist in New York City, has previously explained to Allure that this ultrasound feature is especially helpful in treating darker skin tones: “We can deliver the energy deeper in the skin while minimizing trauma to the epidermis [that can cause hyperpigmentation].”
